Charleston, WV – Attorney General Candidate Dan Greear announced the campaign's third statewide television and radio commercial set to begin airing on Tuesday, October 14.

The campaign titled "Fighting for Seniors and Working People" discusses Dan's commitment to protect senior citizens from fraud and to fight for the working people of West Virginia.

"I am proud to have two great supporters, Lou Cook and Wendell Drake, speak on behalf of my campaign and tell other seniors and working people I'm on their side," Greear said. "Our 'Fighting for Seniors and Working People' ad campaign allows Lou and Wendell to talk directly to the people of the state and discuss who I am and who I will fight for as Attorney General."

The ad can be viewed HERE. The ad will also be available on the Greear for AG website, www.dangreear.com. The advertising will run in all major markets of the state.

"Darrell McGraw, with his poor record of mismanagement including six months of missing records in his office, is trying to scare our seniors. While Darrell claims to be a champion of working people, his office has done more to run off businesses in our state than any other single officeholder currently in place. I am humbled by Lou and Wendell's words and I am pleased they send such a powerful message to West Virginia voters. Seniors will be protected. Working people can rest assured I will fight for them. Defeating Darrell McGraw will bring back respect and honor to the office."

The campaign plans to run both TV and radio ads until Election Day, including a mix of broadcast ads as well as web ads focusing on the candidates' differences and the reasons to vote for Dan Greear.
